Holocaust-Denial Literature: A Fourth Bibliography

John A. Drobnicki

This bibliography is a supplement to three earlier ones published in the March 1994, December 1996, and September 1998 issues of the Bulletin of Bibliography. During the intervening time, Holocaust revisionism has continued to be discussed both in the scholarly literature and in the mainstream press, especially owing to the libel lawsuit filed by David Irving against Deborah Lipstadt and Penguin Books. The Holocaust deniers, who prefer to call themselves "revisionists" in an attempt to gain scholarly legitimacy, have refused to go away and remain as vocal as ever—Bradley R. Smith has continued to send revisionist advertisements to college newspapers (including free issues of his new publication, The Revisionist), generating publicity for his cause.

Holocaust-denial, which will be used interchangeably with Holocaust revisionism in this bibliography, is a body of literature that seeks to "prove" that the Jewish Holocaust did not happen. Although individual revisionists may have different motives and beliefs, they all share at least one point: that there was no systematic attempt by Nazi Germany to exterminate European Jewry. Hence they claim that the Holocaust is a "hoax" perpetrated by Jews ("Zionists") in an attempt to blackmail the rest of the world for sympathy, money, and legitimacy for the State of Israel.

This bibliography includes both works about Holocaust revisionism and works of Holocaust revisionism. Although Holocaust deniers write in many languages, the scope of this project (as with the three previous articles) has been limited to works in English. With the explosion of the World Wide Web, and the proliferation of author, newspaper, and magazine web sites, many of the articles included in this bibliography are actually available on the Web; however, due to limitations of space, Internet addresses (URLs) are provided for only selected materials that are available online. Readers should bear in mind that, because of its unstable nature, Internet addresses often change: URLs were accurate and operative at the time this project was submitted for publication. While this bibliography has been divided into many subject areas, it is acknowledged that numerous entries cross several categories, especially the works in the "General Overview" section. Materials regarding David Irving's lawsuit against Deborah Lipstadt and Penguin Books are included under "European and Russian/Soviet Revisionists," since Irving is a British national and the trial took place in London.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

The author would like to thank Professor Harriet Hagenbruch, Curriculum Materials Center Librarian at Hofstra University's Axinn Library, for her assistance in obtaining materials regarding the controversial revisionist ad in Hofstra University's Chronicle.

HOLOCAUST REVISIONISM IN FICTION AND DRAMA

- Demidenko, Helen [pseud. of Helen Darville]. The Hand that Signed the Paper. St. Leonards, N.S.W., Australia: Allen & Unwin, 1994.
- In this novel about an Australian student who discovers that her Ukrainian father and uncle participated in the Holocaust, the author approvingly presents the view that the Jews "got what they deserved," claiming that the Jews had previously persecuted the Ukrainians and had caused the famine of the 1930s. Although it won several Australian literary awards, many writers condemned the book for being anti-Semitic and presenting a skewed version of history.
- Easterman, Daniel. The Final Judgement. New York: HarperPaperbacks, 1996.
- Neo-Nazi terrorists.
- Ozick, Cynthia. Blue Light. 1994.
- Based on her earlier short story "The Shawl," part of this play concerns a revisionist character (Garner Globalis) who attempts to convince Holocaust survivors that their memories are incorrect and that there was no Holocaust. The revisionist character did not appear in the earlier short story.
- Rubens, Bernice. I, Dreyfus. London: Little, Brown and Company, 1999.
- A Jewish headmaster at an exclusive English school is framed for murder by a neo-Nazi group known as the Iron Circle.
- Sagal, Peter. Denial: A Drama in Two Acts. Woodstock, IL: Dramatic Pub., 1999.
- This 1995 play is loosely based on denier Arthur Butz of Northwestern University.
- Schulman, Helen. The Revisionist: A Novel. New York: Crown Publishers, 1998.
- The story of a Jewish-American man who, after the breakup of his marriage, becomes fascinated with a French chemist who (after having originally been a Holocaust revisionist) authored an antirevisionist text. The French author is based on Jean-Claude Pressac.
