ABOUT NEXT WEEK'S PLAY

"THE DIARY OF ANNE FRANK" is the most ambitious production yet tackled by Harry Hanson's Court Players at the Princes Theatre.

It is an almost unbearably poignant document kept by a thirteen year old Jewish girl, while living in hiding from the Nazis for over two years in an Amsterdam loft.

Above business premises in the heart of Amsterdam, eight human beings live in fear, fed at intervals by two good friends who call on them when the coast is clear. During the day, when people are working in the rooms below their hiding place, they have to walk about without shoes and speak in whispers. Their lives come to a standstill as they get thinner and paler from lack of food and fresh air. The terrible tension increases by night, when the slightest sound fills them with dread, lest it spells discovery and death.

The special setting means that the audience can look into all the rooms at the same time and see at a glance what all eight people are doing at any given moment.

Here is a play which made a deep impression on London's playgoers, for it has all the suspense of a masterly thriller and the conviction of a real life story.
