ABOUT NEXT WEEK'S PLAY

"DEAD ON NINE" is one of the most successful thrillers to come out of London's West-End for a very long time. Written by Jack Popplewell, a Yorkshire author, it thrilled audiences at the Westminster theatre recently.

The story concerns Robert Leigh, a writer of crime dramas. He so hates his wealthy wife that he is determined to ensure her death. Esmeralda, the wife, loathes her husband with equal intensity and their relations are further bedevilled because he has a mistress—his secretary—and she has a lover. Here is an eternal quadrangle.

The plot is enthralling and full of suspense until the final curtain and patrons are earnestly requested to be seated by the time the curtain rises.
