Next Production (May 16th) "THE CONSTANT WIFE" A Play by Somerset Maugham

NEXT PRODUCTION

"THE CONSTANT WIFE"

"The Constant Wife" is a comedy possessed of polished wit, irony and the atmosphere of fashionable philandering of the sort which has placed Mr. Somerset Maugham in a dramatic category all his own. As is usual in this type of comedy, the plot is subservient to its exploitation and, in the very best Maugham tradition, it gets its charm from the satirically witty dialogue, clever characterisation and intriguing comedy situations.

The first production took place at the Ohio Theatre, Cleveland, U.S.A., when the famous Ethel Barrymore played the title role, supported by two English players, Mabel Terry Lewis and C. Aubrey Smith. Subsequently this production became an immense success in New York. The London presentation, at the Strand Theatre, was produced by Basil Dean. Leon Quartermaine played the part of Dr. John Middleton, the philandering physician, who deserves all he gets; Heather Thatcher made a fascinating Marie Louise, his wife's best friend and his fellow-philanderer, and Fay Compton portrayed his wife, Constance, the wife who lied to save her husband! Incidentally, this play made a successful film starring Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook and characteristically Hollywood entitled it—"Charming Sinners"!

In next week's production by Hugh Grant, Margaret Denyer will make a welcome return as Constance Middleton, whilst John Scott will appear as John Middleton, Mary Chester as Marie Louise and Reginald Thorne as Bernard Kersol. AUBREY DYAS.
