UK ‘sleepwalking’ towards food shortages, farmers warn

Rising costs of fuel, fertiliser and feed are impacting on farmers

Holly Bancroft • Monday 25 April 2022 09:25 • 124 Comments

Fuel, fertiliser and feed prices are skyrocketing

British farms are decreasing production because of reduced demand due to the high prices.

Government policy discourages farming

Schemes give up to 100k to farmers to retire early or encourage them to “re-wild” their land.

The Russia / Ukraine “war” is supposedly reducing world wheat production by 20%

It’s not because of the “war” but the sanctions imposed by our governments.

Inflation is skyrocketing

Over the last two years the government printed over £800 billion (Quantitative Easing) - lining the pockets of big pharma and other cronies (Covid Testing, Track & Trace, PPE).

Extreme cold, heat and intense rain and hail

These extremes (due to low solar activity) around the world will reduce this year’s crop harvest. See weatheraction.com for more information.

Why is the government not stopping this from happening?

Our leaders are liars and crooks. They locked us down while they partied. They give big contracts to their friends. Governments always use a crisis to implement more control.

The UK has at least 6 MPs in the cabinet with ties to an unelected, unaccountable organisation called the World Economic Forum (WEF). The WEF are dictating world policy on food and are proponents of Digital IDs.

Food shortages will lead to rationing and then a Digital ID to buy food. Iran has just implemented one. Digital IDs will eventually lead to a cashless society – which will mean total control like the authoritarian Chinese Social credit system. If you do not agree with the government your assets can be frozen at the click of a button.

Food Shortages and its implications - what can you do?

Supplement food by growing

Growing is simple, relaxing and educational... as well as a necessity if we want to feed ourselves during a crisis. You don't need a lot of space, even the smallest of window sills will hold lots of nutritious greens!

If you have space outside (balcony, garden, yard) potatoes, courgettes, tomatoes, peas and strawberries are the most filling and easiest to grow. They can happily live in containers if cared for correctly if you have no earth space available.

Create a growing network -

Want to grow but don't feel confident? Join up with friends and take turns to work on each other's balconies/gardens and share the proceeds.

Keep cash alive -

A cashless society will usher in more control through Digital IDs and a Central Bank Digital Currency. Your transactions can be monitored and access to money can be cut-off by the state (as seen recently in Canada) leading us into a digital prison. Stop using the NHS app / Covid pass which is a Digital control ID by stealth. And use Cash!

Shop locally, using farmers markets and independent shops -

Avoid the big supermarkets who are ushering in a cashless society by reducing the amount of tills that take cash and cutting check-out jobs.

Become a community leader -

Inspire your community to stand up to any authoritarian measures like a Digital ID/Food rationing or help out on a community growing project when we acquire a piece of land in your area. Join our mailing list for information and support.

Need A Summer Job?

Farms are looking for fruit & vegetable pickers - The Association of Labour Providers; (ALP) May 2022 Food Labour Market Survey found that 49% of growers and food manufacturers have cut down on their output due to a lack of workforce.
