I'd just got out of bed when I played this miniature. This is probably the same bloke who keeps playing the Englund Gambit against me; he tried a different trick this time, and it didn't turn out well. He needs to book up on the main line of the Danish Gambit before he pulls a stupid stunt like this!

His fifth move loses a piece; he should have given up playing for tricks at this point and settled for being a pawn down. His last move is an outright blunder but by this time his position is hopeless anyway. A stellar performance showing how to exploit idiotic play.

Final position
