This game was beyond comical. After his second move I wasn't inclined to take him seriously but blundered badly playing a fork trick completely forgetting his pathetic scholar's mate attempt. After 5 moves I had a totally lost position so could only resign or play for traps. I chose the latter, but even then he had a totally won position up until move 13, even more so. Yet he lost in 15 moves! Unreal. I need to slow down; I would never have played that disastrous fourth move under normal circumstances.
