Wendy Roshier, known by her maiden name Wendy Wild, was a mother of three, and either a head case or a shameless liar, quite likely both. In 2014 she was one of a number of pathetic women who falsely accused the legendary entertainer Rolf Harris of sexual assault. The evidence that she had even met Harris was close to zero, but he was charged anyway, and her testimony combined with the dishonest rhetoric of a venal prosecutor led to his conviction, and the end of his career.

Harris appealed, but although the Court Of Appeal upheld his conviction for the sexual assault of Tonya Lee (to avoid granting a retrial), it quashed his conviction for the assault on Roshier when conclusive evidence was adduced that he had never visited the Leigh Park Community Centre all those years ago.

That did not stop Roshier's brother and the tabloid press from continuing to claim she was a victim, and even blaming her somewhat premature death at 57 on Harris. Her funeral at Southampton was said to have been well attended, rather ironic for a woman whose star achievement in life was to propagate a grotesque lie.

Rolf Harris also ended up paying for her funeral because she had been awarded a nice five figure sum in compensation for his imaginary assault, one she was not obliged to repay.
