

Believe Elizabeth Warren or Believe Sexists

Jessica Valenti

Alexander Baron

Oct 9 · 1 min read

Once again you confuse the chimera of sexism with disliking or disbelieving a woman who is unworthy of belief.

Warren lied about her family history to jump the queue for a university post; now she has been caught lying about being sacked. This is called damseling, or more generically playing the victim.

Having read your autobiography it is clear to me why you see sexism everywhere and why you identify so strongly with Warren, you are cut from the same cloth albeit she is less odious than you.

Believing women or believing anyone uncritically leads to chaos. Every day the emergency services worldwide receive hoax calls about assaults, rapes, murders, fires and more. In those cases the responders are required to believe, and there are penalties, sometimes stiff penalties, for false alarms. There are often no meaningful penalties and too often no penalties at all for women who lie about rape or sexual harassment, especially when they backdate their claims. There will be a penalty for Warren though, a new trail of tears when she is crushed by Donald Trump, a man who has given up his golden years to rescue his country from the global elite and hags like you.