No rape charges against Cone

PHILADELPHIA -- Rape charges will not be filed against New York Mets pitcher David Cone, a police spokeswoman said Thursday.

After an investigation, which including examination of hotel records and interviews with Cone's accuser, police and the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office decided that rape charges were 'unfounded,' said police spokeswoman Terry Young.

There will be no arrest, she said. Cone was never taken into custody.

A New Jersey woman alleged that Cone, who was in town last weekend for a season-ending series against the Philadelphia Phillies, assaulted her in a downtown hotel Saturday night.

Officials said Cone knew the woman, who showed up at his hotel room to give him a massage. Cone allegedly was naked when she arrived.

The woman alleged that Cone assaulted her after receiving a massage.
