

Hello,

As I pointed out, I have been extremely disappointed with my views on Medium, so will not be appealing this decision, but I have to make my position clear.

I assume it is Jessica Valenti who complained about the word “hags”. After Donald Trump was accused by E. Jean Carroll, Miss Valenti published an article “Our Rapist President”, which is still on your site. Carroll was interviewed at length by Anderson Cooper, who realised he’d been sold a pup when she said to him most people think of rape as “sexy”. Shortly, her fantasy of being raped by Mr Trump in the lingerie department of Bergdorf Goodman some 24 years ago was exposed as a carbon copy of a fantasy from a 2012 American crime drama.

Likewise, most of the other allegations against Donald Trump have been refuted. The only ones that haven’t been refuted are the type that are impossible to challenge, ie claims by some woman that Trump did something to her somewhere at an unspecified time. Nevertheless, Miss Valenti and her feminist clique continue to pour scorn and hatred on him.

I was surprised her Trump article is still on your site, not because the President might sue for defamation, but others might. Remember what happened to Gawker!

Miss Valenti is a woman who attacks individual men on the most tenuous of evidence or no evidence at all, trashes white men in particular, men in general, and her own country. She does this relentlessly, and when someone calls her a hag, she is mortally offended.

I trust you will also be suspending the account of the contributor who accused me of smearing feces all over my face. Actually, I don’t but see below:

Chris Crawford

Now, now, Mr. Baron, you really shouldn’t smear feces all over your face with such idiotic lies. Not only does it make you look silly, it stinks horribly.

“Believing women or believing anyone uncritically leads to chaos.”

And disbelieving anybody uncritically is just as bad. We rationalists have this concept called “reason” which we use to figure things out. You ought to try it sometime.
