To whom it may concern.

I received a cutting from the newspaper regarding Euro Porn Battle.

I'm a Scot who has lived and worked in Germany for 24 years. I thought that in those 24 years Britain had changed its middle-aged and puritanical points of view. Obviously not! I always thought that Britain was part of Europe. However, I think that Britain wants to be an island alone. It's still living in the "dark ages" with its outdated systems and laws - compared to the "continent" which is also Europe. I recently posted 2 Porn films to a relative of mine in Scotland. He didn't receive them. Instead he received a letter from H.M. Customs. If he didn't claim them they would be destroyed, and if he claimed them he could face charges. They could have returned the goods to me. My address was on the package. What gives them the right to confiscate them.

I would be very interested in further information regarding "your Euro Post Battle" and I will support you.

I allow you to print this letter if you see fit

Yours sincerely

Dorothy Stichtemath.
