A Guide For Teachers And Educators To The Criminal Conspiracy Known As The Searchlight Organisation

2nd Edition

The British contingent was very representative of all sections of the fascist movement. Eddie Morrison from the BNP, Michael McLaughlan and the prison officer Brian Baldwin from the British Movement (Baldwin is now in the BNP), Donald Yule and Roy Sweeney from the National Socialist Party UK, Keith Thompson, Mike Griffin, Della Aleksander from the League of St. George, Soma Hochfelder of the National Party (she has since then joined and left the Front); and there were also a number of National Front members including, according to our information, Ian Souter Clarke and Don Sawyer.

Introduction

The field of race relations is, at best, controversial, at worst, a minefield. It is paradoxical that, at a time when peoples of all races enjoy more freedoms and a higher standard of living than at any time in history, race relations actually seem to be getting worse rather than better. The distinguished black economist Thomas Sowell has written that black "ghettos" in his native America were far safer in the 1930s than they are today. (1) Many people, he says, express amazement at the truthful claim that in the 1930s, whites would often venture into Harlem at night, something they would be ill-advised to do in broad daylight today. (2)

The same author has also written that "Lies and deceptions 'in a good cause' are all too common..." (3) Race relations is unquestionably a good cause, but even the noblest of causes can be tarnished by the activities of cowboys, and of outright crooks. If they are out shopping, most people don't think twice about putting their hands in their pockets for poppy sellers or "save the whale" campaigners. But if someone turned up on your doorstep and asked you to make a donation to charity or animal welfare, you would at least ask to see some form of identification. Before you were to donate money, you would want some guarantee that the money was going to the cause it professed to support; you would at the very least want to make sure that it was not going to just the opposite cause. Who wouldn't be angry if a donation that was intended for the RSPCA went instead to a vivisection laboratory?

It is an unfortunate fact of life that the field of race relations especially is replete with such crooks and con men, and people who, while claiming to promote racial tolerance and understanding, instead promote intolerance, hatred and bigotry. Probably the most crooked and indeed outright criminal of organisations operating in this field in Britain is the Searchlight Organisation. (4) This organisation, which has somehow attained a worldwide reputation for honesty and integrity, (5) has effected a virtual stranglehold over researching certain aspects of racism, and fascist ideology in Britain. In February 1994, it prepared an 18 page report for the conference EUROPEAN YOUTH: UNITED ACTIONS AGAINST RACISM AND NATIONALISM! (6) The current writer is not qualified to comment on either the veracity or the accuracy of the bulk of the paper, but the sections on the United Kingdom and Searchlight - its work and history, are replete with factual errors, distortions and outright lies. Part One of this pamphlet consists of a critique of these sections; Part Two of a brief outline of the Searchlight Organisation's personnel and their credentials.

The stock reply of the Searchlight Organisation to all charges of dishonesty and chicanery on their part is "anti-Semitic". The current writer has been denounced as such on more than one occasion by the magazine's publisher and editor, Gerry Gable. However, this publication is extensively referenced, and the claims contained herein - and others - are being taken seriously by the authorities: the Metropolitan Police and Nottinghamshire Constabulary to name but two. The current writer has no objection to being branded an anti-Semite by Mr Gable and his fellow travellers; the question the reader should ask himself or herself is not, is the author an anti-Semite, but is he a liar? If you don't want to take me at face value, you can verify everything I say by ordering photocopies of the referenced documents. (7)

Part One: Graeme Atkinson's Briefing Paper

The claims on page 1 about the activities of Combat 18 leave much to be desired; although this organisation does exist, and almost certainly has been responsible for organised acts of violence, it doesn't target Jews and blacks so much as "reds". It is said also to have acted as a "protection squad" for David Irving, who is described here as an anti-Semitic writer. Regardless of Mr Irving's views on individual Jews, Jewish conspiracies or Jews generally, one might ask why Mr Irving or any other writer should need to be protected. The answer is because the Searchlight Organisation, and others, frequently incite violence against Mr Irving and his fellow travellers, and try, by force, intimidation and threats, to prevent them from addressing the public, even on private property.

A TEACHERS' GUIDE TO THE SEARCHLIGHT ORGANISATION

Again, regardless of Mr Irving's views, no organisation which wilfully denies him his democratic rights can honestly represent itself as defending democracy.

On the inside cover of this pamphlet, its author Graeme Atkinson refers to the April 1993 exposé of Combat 18 which was screened by independent television in the World In Action documentary series. This programme was largely the product of Searchlight controller Gerry Gable's sick mind. Essentially, what it did was weave a conspiracy theory around two far right activists, Paul David (Charlie) Sargent and Eddie Whicker. Sargent is a "Nazi"; Whicker is an Ulster Loyalist. (8) The World In Action programme also featured the "coming out" of Searchlight mole, (in reality agent provocateur), Tim Hepple. Hepple, who is probably mentally unbalanced, was in every far right group going from the British National Party to the lunatic race-hate cult Church of the Creator. As well as admitting in his own handwriting to stealing British National Party funds while working at the BNP's book shop, he tried to subvert the violent anti-fascists of the anarchist far left by, among other things, palming off a fake mailing list on them. (9)

One thing this programme most definitely did not feature though was the treatment handed out to Charlie Sargent off camera. He was given a going over by a bunch of Anti-Fascist Action thugs who conveniently happened to be present. (10)

Again, with regard to the claim that Combat 18 targets blacks, there is no concrete evidence of this, furthermore, the key members of Combat 18 (Charlie Sargent for example), are well known to the police, yet to date there have been no mass arrests. Sargent is particularly well known because he has no less than twenty-nine criminal convictions, mostly for football violence, but two for drugs-related offences. I don't think Sargent will take umbrage at being referred to as a football hooligan, but he told the current writer that the only time he has ever "fought blacks" it has been political, except on one occasion when they were Birmingham City supporters. (11)

One more point with regard to Combat 18, and more generally to right wing violence and terrorism - real and imagined. (12) Over the years, Searchlight has whined and wailed about the masses of "evidence" it has uncovered about far right violence and alleged terrorism, all of which has been promptly ignored by the police. The reason for this is simple, as Detective Superintendent Ken Day of New Scotland Yard's Special Branch told the current writer: the media are interested in stories while the police are interested in facts.

Returning to the briefing paper proper, on page 1, Atkinson's claim of eleven racial killings annually should be taken with a pinch of salt. There have, it is true, been a number of ostensibly racially motivated murders in recent years, including several in South London in the same geographical area as the British National Party's headquarters, but many alleged racially motivated murders may not be racially motivated at all.

To cite two recent examples, the June 1994 issue of Searchlight reported an attack on an Asian youth by a gang. The victim was cut by a black member of an otherwise all-white gang. This is obviously a case of thugs coming in all colours. At the time of writing, August 1994, a white youth has been reported stabbed to death in North London by an eleven strong all-Asian gang. No doubt the British National Party will make capital out of this rather than Searchlight and its fellow travellers. But again, this is not necessarily a racially motivated murder. Kids from similar backgrounds tend to run together as gangs; the fact that all are Asian, black, white, Irish or whatever, may be no more relevant than the fact that they all live in the same building.

The claim that over 100,000 copies of an allegedly anti-Semitic hate sheet called Holocaust News have been distributed in recent years is both a distortion and very likely a gross exaggeration. No figures are currently available for the number of copies of such literature in circulation; the all-time best seller is Did Six Million Really Die?, also published under the title Six Million Lost And Found... This may well have exceeded over a million sales including different languages and pirate editions. (13)

Under pressure from Jewish (specifically Zionist) organisations, and many times proven liars like the Searchlight team and its fellow travellers, the mass media continues to portray Holocaust Revisionism as a neo-Nazi plot to rewrite history. However, regardless of the obvious fact that Holocaust Revisionism is welcomed by the British National Party and its fellow travellers, the true facts about the Revisionists, and the work they are doing, are sufficiently at odds with the black propaganda campaign against them to warrant open-minded investigation.

Space does not permit such an investigation here, it will suffice to point out that in Canada, one of the principal publishers of Revisionist material, German-Canadian Ernst Zundel, (14) was dragged into court not once but twice on trumped-up charges of hate crime for daring to challenge the perceived wisdom of the Holocaust. Zundel was convicted both times, (15) however, he appealed all the way to the Supreme Court, and in 1992, Searchlight itself reported that Zundel's conviction had been overturned. (16)

The most interesting feature of the Zundel trials though was the Canadian media coverage, which was surprisingly objective. The current writer has seen two videos of the trials comprised largely of such media coverage. (17) They reveal that at the first trial, leading Holocaust expert Raul Hilberg was humiliated by the defence when he was forced to concede that he knew of no scientific report that proved the existence of gas chambers in the Nazi concentration camps. (18)

When the second edition of Hilberg's book was published in 1985, it had been revised considerably. (19) Under pressure from the Revisionists, a great many of the more outrageous lies about the Holocaust (and libels against the German people) have also been consigned to the dustbin of history where they belong, although they are still repeated by survivors, some of whom are obviously mentally ill, (20) and by arch-liars like the Searchlight team. (21)

Next on page 1, Atkinson refers to the exposure of "nazi and even Ku Klux Klan infiltration among government employees".

This sounds shocking, doesn't it? As if the Fourth Reich is plotting to take over the government by stealth and has infiltrated the upper echelons of the British Establishment. In reality, this is a clarion call for ordinary men and women who hold what Searchlight considers to be politically incorrect views, to be hounded out of their jobs. The sort of people targeted for such persecution include local government employees such as a librarian, a social security clerk and even a Mercedes Benz worker. Mercedes Benz, be it noted, is a private company. (22)

On pages 1 and 2, Atkinson also makes much of "links" - one of Searchlight's favourite words - and "infiltration" into the Conservative Party. Some of the far right are said to have links with Loyalist terror groups. One such person who has such links is Steve Brady, who is mentioned in the previous footnote. Brady has been accused of all manner of terrorist activity by Searchlight over the years; in reality he has two criminal convictions, one for violence, and one for daubing a swastika on a wall. So much for the Nazi menace. He has links with French National Front leader Jean-Marie Le Pen. In other words, he corresponds with him. You too can write letters to M. Le Pen. And to the Queen, and to the Pope. Then you can boast of having fascist/Royalist/Papist links. You see how stupid this sort of innuendo is?

Other former members of the National Front and the British National Party are said to be infiltrating the Conservative Party in the guises of the Revolutionary Conservative Caucus and the European Book Society. The operative word here is of course "former". Douglas Hyde was an editor of the Communist Party newspaper the Daily Worker; later he converted to Catholicism and wrote a book I Believed, in which he denounced communism. Other famous former communists also turned on the philosophy: Whitaker Chambers and Elizabeth Bentley, two American communists, also wrote books denouncing communism. An infamous calumny on the Jesuit order was published by a former Jesuit priest. (23) And, nearer to home, both Winston Churchill and Sir Oswald Mosley changed political parties more than once during their careers. Churchill started out as a Conservative, defected to the Liberal Party, and ended his career as a Conservative MP having held many government appointments on the way, including Prime Minister. Although he is best remembered as a fascist, Mosley went through almost the entire political spectrum in his career, starting out as a Coalition Unionist (Conservative), and en route joining the Independent Labour Party before founding his own political parties. Finally, Denis Healey, a former card carrying communist, rose to be Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Labour government. Does that mean that communists infiltrated and took over the Labour Party, and the country as well?

The point I am making is that people's philosophies change as they grow older, sometimes radically as in the case of Douglas Hyde, but more often gradually. Many people joined or join such organisations as the National Front out of concern for, what they see as, their country being invaded by non-white immigrants who are, in their eyes, given special privileges over the indigenous population. Later, many of them moderate their views, or realise that the National Front and the British National Party have other agendas; then they leave. This doesn't mean that such people are reformed fascists, closet fascists or fascist infiltrators. And it certainly doesn't mean that they are inveterate black-haters and raving anti-Semites as Searchlight invariably insinuates. In any case, as we shall see shortly, even if they were, the Searchlight Organisation would be the last organisation on Earth to be able legitimately to take them to task.

On page 14, author Atkinson boasts that Searchlight has gained "an international reputation for...the high standard of its research". Let's take a look at the "high standard" of this research and the "[a]uthoritative television and newspaper exposures of neo-nazism in Britain and internationally" it has been responsible for.

In 1975, it claimed to have uncovered the Nazi Underground, Column 88, which was said by one hysterical anti-fascist journal to have an underground army of three hundred men and women. (24) Searchlight itself declared that: "Column 88 is a private army. It is illegal. There is no legitimate reason why it should be allowed to continue." (25) The government had other ideas, and, after an extensive Special Branch enquiry, William Rodgers, Minister of State for Defence, dismissed Column 88 as "a small drinking club of neo-Nazi nut-cases." (26)

A TEACHERS' GUIDE TO THE SEARCHLIGHT ORGANISATION

In 1981, Searchlight conned the Daily Mirror into running a story about a plot to bomb the Notting Hill Carnival. It also "uncovered" an alleged plot to supply arms in Leicester. This nonsense, which involved the use of agents provocateurs, was totally ignored by the Special Branch in London and by the police in Leicester. (27)

In 1983-4, Searchlight head honcho and mischief-maker Gerry Gable "researched" a documentary for the BBC TV series Panorama. The result, Maggie's Militant Tendency, was screened on January 30, 1984. Its outrageous libels were clearly designed to destroy the career of Neil Hamilton MP, a prospective high flyer in the Conservative Party and now a government minister. Another target of Gable's libels was (now former) MP Gerald Howarth. The April 1984 issue of Searchlight boasted: 'Maggie's Militant Tendency' - this one will run and run. It certainly did, but not in the way Gable and company hoped. The MPs sued, and, after the BBC conceded that the programme was a tissue of lies and had run up a bill of half a million pounds, Searchlight backtracked and claimed that "Almost all the information about alleged connections between Messrs. Hamilton and Howarth and the far right group Tory Action, [etc] was obtained through Panorama's own sources and did not come from Searchlight." (28)

Searchlight has libelled many more people than Neil Hamilton and Gerald Howarth over the years, but redress for libel remains largely in the province of the rich, so these damned liars and mischief-makers have got away with murder, or at the very least, character assassination.

Returning to Atkinson's hagiography of the magazine, he reveals its standards of accuracy when he claims that the first issue of the Searchlight broadsheet appeared in 1964. The first issue was actually dated Spring 1965! (29) The claim on the same page that the Searchlight Association was set up by people from "the Conservative, Labour and Liberal parties, various ethnic and religious communities and trade unions" is more than a little misleading. The current writer has obtained documentation on the original "Searchlight" from Companies House. According to official records, the Searchlight Association Limited was incorporated as a "COMPANY LIMITED BY GUARANTEE AND NOT HAVING A SHARE CAPITAL". Its "Memorandum of Association" (840295) is stamped by Companies House "REGISTERED - MAR 1965".

The original directors were Reginald Freeson, Maurice Orbach, Benjamin Mark Goodman, Baron Moss, Frederick Leonard Tonge, Philip Ian Page and William Douglas McClelland. The company secretary was Norman James Stenner. Both Freeson and Orbach were MPs, Freeson a leading Labour Zionist; Orbach was likewise a Zionist Jew. Baron Moss was director of Baron Moss Advertising Ltd; Goodman (who may have been Jewish) was a barrister; Tonge was a retired trade union official; Page an historian; and McClelland an economist. This is hardly a representative sample of the population. The Conservative associated with the publication was the Catholic MP Norman St. John-Stevas, who was obviously a dupe; his name does not appear in the Companies House documents. The Searchlight broadsheet's first editor was the Labour MP and Zionist Jew Reginald Freeson named above.

In issue 4 of the Searchlight broadsheet, it was announced that Freeson, who had received a government appointment, was being replaced as editor by Joan Lester, M.P. However, no further issues appeared, so Lester edited only the single issue. The annual return "made up to the 31st day of December 1967" showed that Lester had replaced Freeson as a director. Lester's name is absent from the 1971 annual return (made up to the 17th September). The organisation does not appear to have been active at all for the next few years - although appearances can be deceptive - and on May 29, 1975, because it had failed to file accounts, it was issued with a notice under section 353(3) of the Companies Act 1948 that it would be struck off the register "unless cause is shown to the contrary". It wasn't, and the company was duly dissolved under Section 353(5) of the Companies Act by notice in the London Gazette dated 3 OCT 1975. Let us now return to Atkinson's narrative.

"The research work was very effective and led to the arrests and convictions of neo-nazi terrorist gangs who had carried out racial and antisemitic killings and firebombing campaigns" says Atkinson. Lies, pure and simple! The reader is referred to the profile of Gerry Gable in Part Two for the truth about this.

"Searchlight's undercover investigators continue to this day to operate inside neo-nazi organisations bringing out vital information to help safeguard the nazis' potential victims."

This is a gross distortion; in reality, Searchlight's "moles" inside the extreme right incite criminal offences for the magazine to expose, to pressurise the government to ban fascist and similar organisations, to associate any form of white racial consciousness with Nazism, and to peddle the perverted, sex shop Nazism of the organisation's principal controller, Gerry Gable.

But, most interesting, is the claim on the following page, that "Searchlight provided special investigators for the European Parliament's Commission of Inquiry into Racism and Xenophobia..." (30)

As stated, most of the crimes the Searchlight Organisation claims to have solved were incited by the Searchlight team. Others were not crimes at all. (31) On the back page of the pamphlet the hagiography continues, and the errors and lies. Searchlight is said to have been published in its present form since February 1974. Atkinson got it right the first time (on page 14), the first issue of the magazine was dated February 1975 (by subscription only), the second issue was dated April 1975, and after that it was published more or less monthly, as it is to this day.

Searchlight has also: "Worked jointly with friends in North America to ruin neo-nazi historian David Irving's tour of Canada resulting in his being banned and deported". This should read: "Hounded David Irving for holding controversial opinions and having the temerity to try to convey them to the general public."

"Identified several nazi activists working in the civil service, which led to at least three of them being dismissed" should read: "Hounded ordinary working people out of their jobs because they dare to hold politically incorrect opinions about race and related subjects."

"Exposed the links between ultra-right elements in the Conservative Party and fascists in Britain and abroad" should read: "Smearred Conservative MPs."

That's enough of Atkinson's double-talk, let's now take a closer look at the people behind the living legend that is Searchlight magazine.

Part Two: Searchlight Personnel

Maurice Ludmer (1926-81)

Maurice Ludmer was one of the founders of Searchlight, and, together with his co-racist Gerry Gable, was its main controller. Until his death he was undoubtedly the most influential of the two. As well as a hardened race agitator, Ludmer was a communist. He left the Communist Party, not because he had ceased to believe in its dogma, but because he wanted to intensify the struggle against what he and his fellow travellers call racism. In reality, Ludmer was a fanatical race-mixer motivated, like Gable, by an intense hatred of a society he held responsible for the historic persecution of his race. The appeal of communism for many persons of Jewish origin, like Ludmer, is well documented. As is the harsh treatment handed out to persons of the Jewish religion by communist régimes. The latter though is always conveniently forgotten in the class struggle in the capitalist West.

In 1974, Ludmer co-authored with Gable A Well-Oiled Nazi Machine, a pamphlet which, allegedly, exposed the National Front as a Nazi Front. (32) The title was taken from a quote made to the People newspaper by a youthful Martin Webster 12 years earlier.

In reality, this pamphlet was an attempt - successful by all accounts - to smear as a Nazi, any white person who campaigned against immigration, (33) or who did not relish the prospect of having half-caste grandchildren and was honest enough to say so. (34) This pamphlet advocated openly no "freedom of speech" for racialists. Which gives the liars of the "anti-racist" left, including hardened race-haters such as the late Ludmer and the extant Gable, a monopoly.

In 1980, Ludmer gave an interview to the Guardian in which he boasted that "If by creating a public order problem there is some hope that chief constables will ban the [National] Front marches, as they banned Mosley's..then counter demonstrating is valuable." (35) These are the kind of people who represent themselves as the defenders of democracy against the non-existent fascist menace.

Richard David (Dave) Roberts (1949-82)

The story of Dave Roberts and the mythical Nazi Underground has been documented elsewhere. (36) It will suffice here to say that in March 1976, Roberts was convicted at Birmingham Crown Court of conspiracy to assault the staff of an Indian restaurant. He was arrested the previous July in the company of two of Birmingham's lunatic Nazi fringe; while they were gaoled, Roberts escaped with a suspended sentence. The revelations he made at his trial of the machinations of the Nazi Underground, came to nothing, as we have already seen. (It was Roberts who, along with Maurice Ludmer, fed the media all the garbage about Column 88's "underground army" of 300 men and women).

Searchlight sang Roberts' praises, even after he was gaoled in 1977 for assaulting National Front members, but after Ludmer's death, the magazine disowned him, and by the time Roberts himself died the following year at the young age of 32, he had been completely forgotten. This is the way Searchlight treats its friends. (37)

One final, minor point we might mention here. In August 1975, Searchlight, (issue 6, page 18), referred to Ralph Steven Marshall aka John Green, a hyper-cautious and very secret individual who was said to have made a none too polite racial remark at a political meeting in East Anglia a couple of years previously: "WE have more than our fair share of Blacks in the urban Industrial areas, now if we had enough tree's [sic] they could swing on them to their hearts [sic] content." Ralph Marshall was the name Dave Roberts used to infiltrate the National Front; so Searchlight and not the far right, must take the credit (and blame) for this remark, and for any other offensive remarks and actions of its undercover operatives, (read agents provocateurs).

Manny Carpel

Manny Carpel was a "researcher" for Searchlight. Another dedicated Jewish "anti-fascist", in April 1981, he was gaoled for two and a half years at Lewes Crown Court for a politically related arson. In particular, he burned down the print works of the Hancock family, the major printer, publisher and distributor for the far right in Britain. This was reported widely, for example in the April 24, 1981 issue of the Jewish Chronicle. Carpel claimed at his trial to have helped Special Branch in the Midlands, but whatever help he or any other members of the Searchlight team have ever given to either the police or the security services, has been more than outweighed by the wild goose chases they have sent them on. Carpel's current whereabouts are not known, although it is believed that he worked for the magazine as late as 1984, possibly later.

Michael Billig and David Edgar

It is beyond the current writer's resources to list everyone who has ever been connected with the Searchlight Organisation over the years, but these two deserve a special mention. Billig is not a member of the Searchlight team as such, although he was, and probably still is, a shareholder. An allegedly distinguished academic, Billig has, like so many Jewish academics, swallowed whole the poison that anti-Semitism is solely the result of the machinations of wicked goyim who have nothing better to do than hate, persecute, pogrom and murder Jews. In April 1993, Searchlight described Billig as "one of the world's foremost authorities on the psychology of racism and fascism." (Neglecting, of course, to mention his connection with the magazine). In reality, Billig is a polemicist. (38) Probably his outstanding contribution to "the psychology of racism and fascism" is his 1979 Searchlight pamphlet Psychology, Racism & Fascism. (39) This is a particularly nasty smear on, among others, the distinguished psychologist Hans Eysenck, himself a refugee from Nazi Germany. (40)

David Edgar is another of Searchlight's academics. A shareholder (or former shareholder), while Billig spreads the poison in academia, Edgar spreads it to a wider audience. Although a distinguished and highly acclaimed playwright (41) upper class communist Edgar has also authored much political work. Destiny was a particularly nasty piece of work, a thinly disguised send up of the National Front. At one time a regular (but uncredited) contributor to Searchlight, he has also contributed to other far left magazines.

Graeme Atkinson

Currently Searchlight's European editor, Atkinson is another Gentile, and, along with Gerry Gable and Ray Hill, probably as nasty a piece of work as you could wish to find. [I apologise for using this phrase repeatedly, but if the hat fits...] In the seventies he picked up a minor conviction for distributing anti-National Front leaflets in the Manchester and Bolton areas in the run up to the October 1974 General Election. (42) In December 1975, Atkinson's face appeared in the Morning Star newspaper; he had been the victim of a horrific attack at a political meeting in the North of England and needed 19 stitches after being hit in the face with a bottle. (43) This attack was carried out by National Front supporters, so one could forgive Atkinson for hating both the party and its ideology. But one can't forgive or excuse persistent lying and misrepresentation. Nine years later, the Morning Star's photograph of Atkinson appeared briefly in the lie-ridden documentary The Other Face Of Terror, which was masterminded by the Searchlight team. It was claimed or implied here that Atkinson had been the victim of a racial attack. He hadn't.

At the time of this attack, Atkinson appeared to have no connection with the Morning Star, although subsequently he was employed by this paper. It was him who fed it the story of the non-existent murder plot against his pal, Gable. (44) This story was first reported in the Daily Mirror the previous day, (45) and was never substantiated for the obvious reason that it was pure garbage. It was though taken up by Private Eye, which was foolish enough to name the man behind this "plot", who was none other than Gerald Howarth. At the time this story was released, the aforementioned Maggie's Militant Tendency libel suit was due to come to court. This was clearly an attempt by Gable, Atkinson and others to poison the minds of the jury. (46)

Atkinson's employment with the Morning Star doesn't appear to have lasted long. He claimed at one point that an attempt was made to recruit him by Bulgarian Intelligence, and was promptly sacked. He took his case to an industrial tribunal where he claimed that he had withheld this "information" from his employers because he feared they would suppress the story; the Morning Star claimed that he had betrayed the paper's confidence and had acted unprofessionally. The case was dismissed. (47)

As Searchlight's European editor, Atkinson is rewarded with free trips abroad - nice work if you can get it. He seems to have a particular fondness for Sweden, where, in 1989, he was credited with a fake letter which was sent to an obscure Swedish "anti-racist". (48) This is hardly surprising as the Searchlight team has a long history of forging documents. (49) Atkinson was also said to be wanted for questioning by Swedish police for allegedly roughing up a thalidomide victim. (50)

Sonia Gable nee Hochfelder

Sweet Sonia is the most eclectic member of the Searchlight team. A former Inland Revenue official - where she may have had access to sensitive information concerning people's tax status etc - she is now believed to be in private practice. She is also the correspondent of the misnamed Searchlight Educational Trust. Sonia is sixteen years younger than her husband, and before she met him she had some rather strange men friends for a nice Jewish girl. In the late seventies, she was a member of the National Front, the National Party, and the League of St. George. She was even "exposed" in an early issue of Searchlight. (51) In view of the opprobrium which has been heaped on the League of St. George - (the international wing of the neo-Nazi conspiracy, ad nauseum), she is the last person one would expect to find working for an "anti-racist" organisation.

Sonia joined the National Front through Steve Brady, with whom she is rumoured to have had a brief affair. Here is what League member Keith Thompson had to say about her: I said to Sonia Hochfelder: "Are you a Jew?" She said: "My father used to be." Those were her exact words. Her mother was a Gentile, her father used to be a Jew. They lived within 200 yards of me at one point. I first met her around 1977; she'd been in some lunatic Maoist organisation at Imperial College, where Brady was. She went into the NF, made donations to the National Front, worked very well, worked very hard, seemed in every way genuine. Obviously we never really trusted her but it seemed unlikely to me that she was a spy because she looked so much like a spy; she was a walking caricature of a Jew really. That's all I can say about her. She got engaged to Malcolm Smith, who was a directorate member of the National Front. (52)

Whatever sweet Sonia's ethnic origins, that didn't prevent her from making statements which, if uttered by a goy, would have her husband denouncing the speaker as an anti-Semite. In 1976, she attended the international festival at Diksmuide, and, in a report on this in the League of St. George's theoretical journal she wrote: "The enemies of the White Race operate on an international scale and will continue to dictate to us if we fight amongst ourselves." (53)

Who could these enemies be if not the "International Jews"? The same issue of this magazine contained a review of The World Conquerors, a book by Hungarian author Louis Marschalko. The Protocols of Zion was one of Mr Marschalko's less fanciful beliefs!

Ray Hill

Searchlight "columnist" (54) Ray Hill is, or rather was, the Searchlight Organisation's trump card, their ace in the hole, living proof of the evils of fascism and the eventual, inevitable triumph, of anti-fascism as personified by Searchlight. The plain truth though is that Ray Hill is everything the title of this short pamphlet claims the Searchlight team to be: He is a Jew-hater, a black-hater, a violent criminal, a hypocrite, and a liar condemned out of his own mouth.

Jew-hater: in July 1979, the Jewish Chronicle published an account of Hill's assault on a Jewish café owner. When Hill attacked Peter Josephs, he was alleged to have shouted "Bastard Jew!" In March 1988, Jewish businessman George Lewis was cleared after Hill had attempted to frame him for indecently assaulting children, including Hill's own two young sons. (See Appendix A for full details). This was particularly revealing since Hill "came out" as an undercover anti-fascist four years before this case came to court.

Black-hater: in South Africa, Hill was a leading member of a short lived, minuscule quasi-fascist organisation called the South African National Front. During which time this "party" published a number of anti-black and "anti-Zionist" pamphlets which led to calls for it to be prosecuted for incitement to racial hatred. This was in racist, apartheid South Africa, remember! When it was pointed out that the SANF's policies would lead to a massive increase in the death rate of black infants, Hill replied coolly: "tough - but that's natural selection." (55) In a letter published in the September 1991 issue of the Labour magazine Briefing, Hill referred to black organisations "consisting of three men and a dog". So much for "anti-racism".

Violent criminal: in July 1962, Hill was gaoled for two years for, among other things, a vicious assault on and wounding of a police officer in the execution of his duty. (56) In 1968, he assaulted a press photographer; (57) the following year he assaulted Jewish café owner Peter Josephs, as already mentioned. Anticipating a gaol sentence, he fled to South Africa, returning after ten years to face the music, not out of remorse, but because he was wanted for further crimes in South Africa and had jumped bail. While in 1988, Hill attacked British National Party activist Kevin Scott; (58) the BNP are the fascists, remember? In his lie-ridden autobiography, Hill boasts of thumping National Front member Derek Holland, and admits striking a work foreman as a young man. (59)

In view of the foregoing, Hill's hypocrisy needs no explaining. As to his lies condemned out of his own mouth, the reader is referred to Appendix A which documents what he said about his criminal convictions on two different occasions.

Finally, I would like to draw a parallel between Hill and Dave Roberts. The two men had very little in common, for while Hill was a sneak who betrayed his comrades for thirty pieces of silver, Roberts was unquestionably a dedicated communist, and an idealist - albeit in a perverted way. We have already seen that Roberts resorted to racially abusive language in his role as an agent provocateur, so did Hill. On page 169 of his lie-ridden autobiography, Hill claims that he used the phrase: "...when sub-humans riot in our streets" at the inaugural demonstration/march/rally of the British National Party. Whatever one may think of the BNP, it is a fact that the vast majority of white nationalists would never use such language in earnest about blacks, who were, presumably, the people Hill was referring to here.

Other Searchlight Operatives

A brief word here about some minor players.

Vernon Green

Green was listed as assistant editor of the magazine from December 1980 to June 1981, and may not have existed.

Michael Cohen

Actually, not such a minor player. Michael Cohen is a photographer who does appear to exist, and although he is or was a director of Searchlight Information Services Ltd., his name does not appear ever to have been mentioned in the magazine. Another photographer, David Hoffman, has often been mistaken for Cohen. Although Hoffman is Jewish and has, apparently, taken the odd snap shot for Searchlight, he is an otherwise eminently respectable photographer. Which is more than can be said for the non-Jewish Daphne Liddle.

Daphne Liddle

A die-hard Stalinist who sleeps with a portrait of Joe Steel himself over her bed, (60) "anti-fascist" Liddle is a journalist who works on the New Worker, the newspaper of the New Communist Party. Liddle has taken the odd snap for Searchlight, and although she is - surprisingly - a staunch anti-Zionist, she is one of the magazine's greatest apologists. She is also totally ruthless and a damned liar who had no qualms about threatening her ex-husband with violence from Gable's hit men for his alleged cooperation with the current writer in his researches.

Veronica Ware

Also known as V'ron Ware, she took over as nominal editor on the death of Maurice Ludmer, although the reader should be under no illusion as to who really controls this magazine. From the beginning the two prime movers were always Maurice Ludmer and Gerry Gable, no matter what disinformation may have been fed to the media. (61) In 1979, Ware put her name to a Searchlight pamphlet called Women and the National Front. (62) This pamphlet, or large tranches of it, was almost certainly the work of Maurice Ludmer as its main theme was to proselytise against the evils of white women having white babies, a pastime both Ludmer and Gable have always found deeply offensive.

In 1992, Ware, who by then had relocated to the United States, published a book Beyond the Pale: White Women, Racism and History, the main theme of which was how wicked it is to be both white and a woman. (63) She also described her "investigative work" with Searchlight as "often dangerous and potentially violent". She claims that, after working as an education officer for Birmingham Community Relations Council she spent six years with Searchlight "from office girl to editor". After becoming pregnant and taking some time off to have the baby, she was told that she couldn't have her old job back. Perhaps it was white.

Laurence King

Nothing much known about this character except that he does exist; Mark Taha - my fellow researcher - met him once when he was speaking at a Conservative meeting. He was billed as a researcher for Searchlight. According to Larry O'Hara, (64) he is probably a Jew who came to Searchlight from the Union of Jewish Students. Searchlight's policy of recruiting racial Jews for this sort of subversive work is a wilful and wicked attempt to exploit anti-Semitism. In the Middle Ages, monarchs did the same thing, so did the communists, of course, and so, surprisingly, did the Nazis. (65)

Steve Tilzey

Searchlight's man in the North of England, or one of them. Not a lot is known about him, but he appears to be making a career out of this sort of work.

Stephen Silver

Not a lot is known about this individual either, but he is a time-server, and, although he may not contribute directly to the magazine, he has certainly been a major influence on it.

Leonard Zeskind

Zeskind, who is based in the United States, runs something called the Center For Democratic Renewal, which sounds good in theory, but so does "anti-fascism". He publishes The Monitor, which is the American equivalent of Searchlight. He is the magazine's U.S. correspondent. Along with Gable and Silver, he was one of the people who gave "evidence" to the Home Affairs Committee "investigating" racial attacks. Presumably his presence was meant to shed some light (or darkness) on the supposed international Nazi conspiracy.

A 1992 book Nazis, Communists, Klansmen and Others on the Fringe: POLITICAL EXTREMISM IN AMERICA by American academics John George and Laird Wilcox, throws some light on Zeskind and his organisation. The CDR was originally known as the National Anti-Klan Network but changed its name in 1986. It evolved out of a Marxist-Leninist organisation, and Zeskind himself was an organiser for the Marxist-Leninist Sojourner Truth Organization.

Glyn Ford MEP

Ford writes the occasional column for Searchlight. Probably a dupe rather than a member of the Gable cabal, he once published an uncritical review of Ray Hill's lie-ridden autobiography in the New Statesman. (66)

Andrew Bell

Bell is not a member of the Searchlight team, but he is a particularly nasty piece of work, has worked closely with Gable in the past, and certainly warrants a paragraph. Television journalist Bell is a graduate of Balliol College, Oxford. He is best known as the co-author/ghost writer of The Other Face Of Terror. Notwithstanding the fact that this book is riddled with lies and smears, it is incredibly sloppily researched, and if Bell had any journalistic skills at all he would have purged many of the more obvious errors and provable lies to improve Hill's ill-deserved credibility. Bell once collaborated with Searchlight's academic henchman Michael Billig to publish a lengthy article on "fascism". (67) Apart from that, he is undoubtedly a vehicle for Gable's lies and smears, with particular reference to commercial television. He is though, no dupe, and, although he may have different motives from Gable, he knows exactly what he is doing.

Tony Robson

One of the rising stars of Searchlight, Robson is currently office manager. An example of his, and Searchlight's technique, can be seen in a recent quote they gave to the Sunday Mirror. On July 10, 1994, a "SPECIAL INVESTIGATION" by one Chris House, proclaimed: NAZI WARDER BARRED: INSIDE STORY ON HOW THE FAR RIGHT IS RECRUITING IN BRITAIN'S JAIL: Officer sent home as prison chiefs probe sinister campaign. This exposé, which may have emanated from Searchlight, (68) claimed that a prison officer at London's Wandsworth gaol had bragged that "THIRTY-ONE officers there support the shadowy Friends of Oswald Mosley." He was promptly suspended from duty. (69)

The Sunday Mirror tried to portray the Friends of Oswald Mosley as some sort of twilight, quasi-Nazi underground movement; Robson added his two shekels' worth of hate by claiming: "Hitler to them was the greatest statesman ever. Now they want to recreate the Third Reich in Britain." The article revealed, unsurprisingly (but incorrectly), that the 84 year old Lady Diana Mosley is the titular head of the organisation, and Robson claimed that: "Politically she was harder than Mosley himself."

The true facts, which are, or should be known to Searchlight, are as follows. The Friends of Oswald Mosley is exactly that, the friends of OSWALD MOSLEY. [Its actual title is the Friends of O.M.]. Whatever, it does not worship Hitler, as suggested, and believes that Mosley, rather than Hitler was the greatest statesman ever. It has nothing to do with the Third Reich or propagating the ideas and ideals of the Third Reich any more than say those of Chiang Kai-shek or any other nationalist leader of the Twentieth Century. And, although she is still remarkably active (though well into her 80s), Lady Diana Mosley is not involved in politics of any sort.

The organisation is run principally by former members of the British Union (of Fascists), which was a pre-World War Two organisation, so, as might be expected, they are all getting on a bit. It does have younger followers, including former members of the post-war Union Movement, who also help run it; the current writer has met one follower who is far too young even to have been a member of Union Movement, but basically it is a Mosley fan club which organises occasional dinners and meetings.

That is the social side to the Friends of Oswald Mosley, but there is a much more important side to its work, it runs the Mosley Archive, and is used extensively by researchers, primarily academics. Among those who have used its resources is Professor Brian Simpson, who has recently published a book on the 18b Detentions entitled In The Highest Degree Odious. A number of Jewish organisations are also on its mailing list, which is what the "organisation" consists of essentially, a mailing list. I have used the word followers because I am informed that F.O.M. has no membership as such. Incidentally, the prison officer who was set up by the Sunday Mirror has now been reinstated. All the foregoing must surely have been known to Tony Robson, which brings us to

Gerry Gable

The spider at the centre of this web of subversion. We have already seen that Gable and his magazine's/organisation's persecution of "fascists" is in stark contrast to his personal life, for, not only is he married to a former fascist, but unreconstructed anti-Semite Ray Hill refers to him as "my mate, Gerry". (70) The current writer could write reams about Gable, but here I'll settle for exposing two of his more blatant lies and an act of gross hypocrisy.

The story Gable usually tells about how he first became an active "anti-fascist" is as follows. One Easter, as a young boy, he was abused by a Mosleyite schoolteacher who said to him: "You're a Jew, aren't you Gable?" (71) This teacher then told Gable's classmates that the Jews had killed Jesus, and poor young Gerry had to run home under a hail of stones, one of which left a permanent scar. This is just the sort of incident which could indeed inspire a young Jewish boy to spend the rest of his life campaigning against bigotry and intolerance. Leaving aside the demonstrable fact that Gable creates more bigotry and intolerance than he has ever succeeded in dispelling, this story is a lie. It never happened. And for three good reasons.

1) This is a piece of folklore. It is true that Jews were stoned by "Christians", but not in the Twentieth Century - East European pogroms and Nazism excepted. The good Christian people of England used to stone the Jews on Good Friday. Writing in The Jewish Contribution To Civilisation, Cecil Roth says of Jews in the Middle Ages that: "On Good Friday, in many places, they were stoned by the rabble and buffeted by the authorities - sometimes with fatal results." (72)

2) In a letter dated 20 August 1994, a correspondent for the Mosley Archive informed the current writer as follows: "The 'Mosleyite' schoolteacher. Confirmed. (73) If there had been one in London I doubt very much whether he would 'have stuck his neck out' with the wording you tell me was alleged to be used to Gable. A Mosleyite teacher would in fact take all precautions not to risk his beliefs being known, apart from the fact that I believe no Mosleyite would 'persecute' a small Jewish boy in this mode."

Indeed, further confirmation of this is the fact that Colin Jordan, self-professed Hitler worshipper, was employed by the local authority in Coventry as a teacher in the late fifties and early sixties, and, because he was obviously a good teacher and didn't bring his politics into the classroom, Jordan's right to free expression was defended for three years by local authority officials. (74) It was only after his 1962 "Free Britain From Jewish Control" rally that he was dismissed; (75) he was subsequently gaoled for "paramilitary activity", which would have been enough to exhaust the patience of a saint. Colin Jordan was and remains an avowed anti-Semite; many fascists were not, although at the time Gable mentions, they did object strenuously to Jewish terrorists murdering British servicemen and policemen in what was then Palestine. Especially after they had fought a world war to, among other things, save Jews from the Nazi gas chambers. (76)

3) In 1698, Algernon Sidney penned that immortal phrase: "Liars ought to have good memories". Gerry Gable is certainly a prolific liar, but he is not an adept one because he tells different lies at different times. In May 1985, he told the magazine Media Week that: "His rage was triggered at an early age when, in 1947, a policeman called his father a 'Jew boy' and told him to make a path for a fascist street march. 'At the age of 10, that kind of impression sticks with you for the rest of your life,' Gable says." (77)

This is almost certainly as big a lie as Gable's usual explanation for his hatemongering. But in the same interview, another statement he made was very likely sincere. "He claims that 90 per cent of the TV programmes made on the extreme right over the past decade, and most press investigations, have used Searchlight research." (78) This claim is frightening, in other words, for an entire decade, two decades now, a whole generation of TV viewers and newspaper readers have had their opinions formed and their minds poisoned by the lies and venom of a hate-filled, little Jew. (79) Who has in turn, brought untold hatred onto the heads of his own race. The second major lie exposed here concerns Gable's cynical exploitation of his co-racialists.

In 1966, two groups of young men were sentenced at the Old Bailey in two separate but connected trials. The previous year, a number of London synagogues had been fire-bombed and one of them destroyed completely. (80) Gerry Gable has claimed repeatedly in print a) that he and his gang, "Searchlight intelligence officers", "Searchlight investigators" and 62 Group (81) thug Harry Bidney, were responsible for bringing the perpetrators to justice. While there is some evidence that Bidney was involved in obtaining a confession from one of the gang, Paul Dukes (not Paul Duke as claimed in the August 1994 issue of Searchlight), the main "contribution" of the 62 Group was to attempt to fit up British Nazi leader Colin Jordan as the mastermind behind the fires. (82)

And b) Gable has claimed that a young Jewish student died in one of these fires, and thus claims to have solved a murder or at best manslaughter case, and that another was crippled. The reality is that the fire at the Mesifita Talmudical College in Stamford Hill, North London, occurred on November 10, 1964, a full four months before the first of the London arsons, and this fire was most definitely not arson. (83) Nor, incidentally, was the second student crippled; a short while ago the current writer spoke to him on the telephone, and although thirty years on, his old injury still gives him trouble in the cold weather, he is, in every other sense, able-bodied. Judah Gottesman works as a shochet in Manchester.

Finally, I would like to point out an act of gross hypocrisy on Gable's part. In 1994, Gable received an invitation to appear on a BBC TV programme. He declined, and the following dialogue appeared in the Hill Street News column in the April issue of Searchlight by way of an explanation:

"What is the structure of the programme," Gerry asks. "Oh, it's a debate," comes the reply. "With whom?" "A member of the BNP," says the caller. "Do me a favour," says Gerry, "no way". "Aha," says BBC caller, "Is it because you do not wish to give them credibility?" "No, it's because I don't sit in studios with criminals, particularly violent ones."

We need not reiterate that Ray Hill is a thrice convicted violent criminal and worse. But we will point out that Gable's hypocrisy is compounded not only by the fact that it is he rather than Hill who writes this column, but also by the fact that he is a convicted criminal himself, who on at least one occasion boasted that he was "fiercely proud" of this conviction, "his only unsuccessful brush with the law". (84)

Searchlight's Raison D'être

Most of the people involved with Searchlight are communists or have communist backgrounds. We would not fall into the same trap as Searchlight (85) by claiming that anyone who has ever flirted with communism remains a communist, but it is the world's worst kept secret that the "anti-fascist" movement in Britain and indeed elsewhere is largely a front for the far left. The nominally anti-Zionist Socialist Workers Party has probably the largest influence on the domestic anti-fascist scene. The Anti Nazi League (ANAL) is largely the SWP's creation. The SWP and the extreme left believe that not only is fascism the tool of the "ruling class", but that racism is a creation of capitalism, and that you can't have the latter without the former. In other words, there will be racism until the private control of capital has been abolished and placed in the hands of the state. Which they will control, of course. As one of the great success stories of capitalism in the 1970s and 80s has been the rise of the Asian businessman, Mr Patel should think very carefully before he gives a penny to any anti-fascist/"anti-racist" organisation. Because they don't just want his money, they want his supermarket as well!

Three of the major players in the Searchlight organisation were outright communists. The late Maurice Ludmer was an avowed communist; Gerry Gable stood as a communist candidate in Northfield ward, Hackney in May 1962 where he polled 178 votes. (86) He left the Communist Party because it began to show sympathy for the plight of the Palestinians, and for him, ultimately, only Jewish suffering counts. Searchlight's European editor, Graeme Atkinson, had of course worked for the Morning Star, the same paper, incidentally, on which Gable started his journalistic career. (87)

In October 1992, Searchlight reported that: "Contrary to popular myth most Communists are not evil, scheming oppressors. The history of the twentieth century has provided sufficient proof of the falsity of this particular piece of ideological defamation, recording for all time the acts of heroism and selflessness on the part of countless dedicated socialists in the face of tyranny."

Such acts of heroism and selflessness include the massacre of nearly 15,000 Polish officers and intellectuals in the Katyn Forest - an atrocity which the Soviets tried to blame on the Nazis at the kangaroo court of Nuremberg; the Gulags; the "Great Leap Forward" of Mao Tse-tung; the killing fields of Cambodia; Tiananmen Square; and countless other acts of genocide, mass murder or simple inhumanity. True, most or all political and religious philosophies have blood on their hands, including democracy, but it is really laughable that anyone who supports or gives any aid and comfort at all to such monsters as Stalin, Chairman Mao or Pol Pot, should claim to be anti-fascist.

For Searchlight though, there is another, and far more important aspect of anti-fascism/"anti-racism", this is the supposed uniqueness of Jewish suffering and the unconditional hatred of its principal controller, Gerry Gable, for Western civilisation. Jewish self-hatred has long been recognised as a driving force behind the likes of Gable; Douglas Hyde, a time-serving communist who converted to Catholicism (whom we have already met), noted that "...nowhere will one find a more cynical anti-Semitism than in the [Communist] Party itself. And, the most anti-Semitic Communists of all are those of Jewish origin." (88) In Gable's case, his obvious self-hatred is compounded by a hatred of all things Aryan, a hatred that is barely concealed, hence his equating with Nazism any individual or institution which seeks to preserve a British or white European heritage. This is the real reason why Jewish communists are so fanatically "anti-racist": forced race-mixing and the resultant miscegenation will lead, ultimately, to the extinction of the wicked Aryan goyim whom they hold responsible for the historic persecution of their race, Holocaust and all. In reality though, it is the likes of Gable who are the root cause of anti-Semitism, as the better amongst the Jews realise. (89)

For Gentile communists, "anti-racists" and fellow travellers (like Graeme Atkinson), their hatred of Western society stems from their indoctrination with the false ideology of capitalist oppression. To them, the white, middle class, Anglo-Saxon male is the ultimate symbol of domination, oppression and capitalism. This racist stereotype is all the more ironic since in the early part of the Twentieth Century, the filthy capitalist was inevitably depicted as Jewish, and a whole anti-Semitic ideology, conspiracy theory and all, has been constructed around the extraordinary success of a certain type of Jewish entrepreneur. (90)

Conclusion

These then are the people who are preaching against the evils of racism and fascism, and who, together with their fellow travellers, have succeeded in brainwashing an entire generation. It is ironic that the more money that is spent on race relations the worse they seem to get. And this at a time when there are more highly paid black sportsmen and women, more highly paid blacks in the media and entertainments industries than at any time in history. At a time when perhaps half the small retail outlets in Britain are owned by Asian entrepreneurs, when apartheid has been abolished, in an era where anti-Jewish pogroms have been replaced by halfwits daubing swastikas on synagogue walls and sending endless updates of the Protocols Of Zion through the post. This in an era when what bigotry there is remains largely of a drawing room "I wouldn't invite one to my house" type. In fact, whatever "prejudice" or "intolerance" the British may show towards non-whites, immigrants, Jews, or foreigners generally, they have always had a far greater sense of fair play than most other nations.

A TEACHERS' GUIDE TO THE SEARCHLIGHT ORGANISATION

As long ago as 1771, a black slave who was held in irons on board a ship lying in the Thames bound for Jamaica was ordered set free by a judge. Lord Mansfield declared his detention to be unlawful because "The air of England is too pure for any slave to breathe..." (91)

It is true that there is certainly racial intolerance, but as the ongoing genocide in the Central African Republic of Rwanda demonstrates emphatically, racial intolerance is by no means limited to whites, and is as often as not black on black, or as in Northern Ireland, white on white.

In this connection it is as well to quote a distinguished liberal academic's view of "Imperialism". Writing in his massive tome Tragedy And Hope, Professor Quigley tells us that: "British rule in the period 1858-1947 tied India together by railroads, roads, and telegraph lines. It brought the country into contact with the Western world, and especially with world markets, by establishing a uniform system of money, steamboat connections with Europe by the Suez Canal, cable connections throughout the world, and the use of English as the language of government and administration. Best of all, Britain established the rule of law, equality before the law, and a tradition of judicial fairness to replace the older practice of inequality and arbitrary violence." (92)

So much for "Imperialism", racist oppression and exploitation. The same author says of the 19th Century Japanese: "[In Japanese society] all non-Japanese, lacking divine ancestry, are basically inferior beings, existing only one cut above the level of animals and, accordingly, having no basis on which to claim any consideration, loyalty, or consistency of treatment at the hands of Japanese." (93) So much for the racism arising out of "Imperialism" doctrine of the far left. So much too for the unique wickedness of Aryan goyim, as espoused by the Searchlight team.

Race relations is still a worthy cause, in spite of the crooks, opportunists, liars and parasites who infest this field. But any worthy cause can be polluted and discredited by such evil men and women as the Searchlight team, especially Gerry Gable. Like the "animal rights" activists who put animals before people and even resort to terrorism, many race relations activists bring shame on their cause, and, in the case of Gable, hatred on his race.

On the inside cover of his pamphlet, Atkinson boasts that "Searchlight is actively involved in education against racism in cooperation with schools in Britain..." This is a truly shocking claim; in view of the revelations documented here and elsewhere by both the current writer and others (see Appendix C), no school should allow this filthy cabal of Jewish hatemongers and Marxist fellow travellers within a mile of its pupils. And no parent - of any race - should allow the likes of Gerry Gable to poison the minds of his or her children with his paranoia, lies, and unconditional racial hatred of Western Man and his democratic institutions.

The current writer has no solution to the myriad problems of race relations. Undoubtedly there are no easy answers, but the first step to solving any problem is to approach it honestly. Which in this case means exposing the Searchlight Organisation for the damned liars and hatemongers they are. And then flushing them down the toilet and thenceforth into the sewers of history where they, and especially Gerry Gable, belong.

Appendix A

County man cleared of indecency

COUNTY man George Lewis was acquitted of indecency charges involving little boys after claiming there was a vendetta against him.

Lewis (53) had denied five charges of indecent assault and was found not guilty after the Lincoln Crown Court jury had been out overnight.

During the week-long trial it was revealed by prosecuting barrister Richard Inshall that Lewis had once been deported from Rhodesia after being convicted of indecency involving a male person.

Victim

Lewis claimed in the witness box that the fresh allegations were made by a former friend who had found out about his past. He alleged he had become the victim of an attempted blackmail plot.

Lewis claimed the man, the father of two of the children involved, had become annoyed because he would not go into business with him.

"I was successful in business and he thought he would like to be part of it," said Lewis of Livingstone Avenue, Thorpe Sands, near Mablethorpe.

Shady

He alleged the man and the boys "got their heads together" to "blackguard" him.

"I was unwilling to go into shady business ventures with him such as a betting shop," said the defendant.

That put their friendship under strain and it was further affected, alleged Lewis, when the man realised Lewis's brother was a Jew. "He doesn't particularly like Jews," alleged Lewis.

During the trial, the man, who cannot be named to protect the identity of the children, verbally abused Lewis several times and had to be warned about his conduct by the trial judge, Richard Hutchinson.

Right-wing man sentenced

From a Correspondent

Raymond Hill, aged 39, the former secretary of the right-wing British Movement branch in Leicester, appeared at Leicester Crown Court last week on charges of damage to property and occasioning actual bodily harm to Mr Peter Josephs ten years ago.

Hill pleaded "not guilty" but admitted smaller charges of "common assault".

Prosecuting, Mr M. Stokes stated that on August 21, 1969, Mr Josephs was punched several times in the face by Hill, who was known to have "strong political views". It was also alleged that while committing the offences, in Mr Josephs' coffee-bar, Hill shouted, "Bastard Jew".

Mr Stokes added that Mr Josephs had been subjected to "a deal of difficulty". "Happily," he added, "this antisemitic activity has died."

For the defence, Mr J. Price presented Hill as a changed person since the time of the assault. He claimed that the accused, who had returned from South Africa to face the charges, did not abscond to that country but "emigrated" there. It would be unlikely, he added that Hill would be involved in similar incidents in the future. "He is not now affiliated to any political party and has been doing his best to settle down into family life."

Hill was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment suspended for one year.

When leaving the dock Hill raised his arm in salute to four young men in the public gallery.

These two press cuttings (above) expose Ray Hill for what he is, an unprincipled thug and an unreconstructed anti-Semite. In the 1960s, he tracked down the racists behind an arson campaign against synagogues which had resulted in the death of a yeshiva student. The police caught no one, but his investigation yielded 13 convictions.

role. His greatest success came in the mid-60s with the arrest and conviction of 13 members of Colin Jordan's and John Tyndall's nazi groups for a series of synagogue arsons. Those convicted included Francoise Dior, Colin Jordan's former wife. Harry broke the gang by persuading one of its young members to give himself up to the police. At the Old Bailey the Judge at one of the three trials praised the work of Harry and his colleagues in stopping the arsonists — something the police had been completely unable to do for over a year.

Boy dies in London yeshiva fire

JEWISH CHRONICLE REPORTER

A 15-year-old student lost his life when fire destroyed the Mesifita Talmudical College in Cazenove Road, Stoke Newington, London, in the early hours of Tuesday. Another student was seriously injured when he jumped from the burning building.

The boy who died was Wolf Katz, of Stoke Newington, whom firemen found huddled in an upper-storey room of the college.

The student who jumped from a second-floor window was Judah Gottesman, of Clapton. He broke his leg and was unconscious when taken to Hackney Hospital in a police car. His condition was said yesterday to be improving.

It was shortly after 4 a.m. when shouts and cries for help from the students in the college were heard by neighbours in Cazenove Road.

NO INCENDIARISM AT YESHIVA

Jewish Chronicle Reporter

Fascists were not responsible for the fire which destroyed the Mesifita Talmudical College, Stamford Hill, last month, according to Scotland Yard.

Mr. David Weitzman, M.P. for Stoke Newington and Hackney North, told the JEWISH CHRONICLE that the Assistant Commissioner of the Yard had written to him that "there is no evidence that any form of pseudo-fascist or similar activity is present in the district."

Careful inquiries had revealed that there was no evidence of incendiarism in connection with the fire. Mr. Weitzman had been informed by a number of his constituents of rumours to this effect, and he had asked Scotland Yard to investigate.

The truth about the 1960s synagogue arsons. Top left: what Gable told the Jewish Chronicle in October 1987; top right: three years earlier he told Searchlight's readers that his thug friend (and later convicted pimp) Harry Bidney had solved the arsons. Whatever Bidney's actual role, contemporary press cuttings from the Jewish Chronicle reveal the truth about the yeshiva fire, it was simply a tragic accident. Gable continues to lie about this fire - and to exploit his co-racialists - he repeated the phony arson claim in the April 1993 and August 1994 issues of his lie-ridden magazine.

Appendix C: A Short Dissenting Bibliography On The Searchlight Organisation

Zionists run biggest 'dirty tricks' operation in Britain, by Martin Webster, published in Spearhead, June-July 1976, issue 95, pages 6-8 & 17.

Although published in a National Front magazine and written by a notorious anti-Semite (and homosexual), this is an excellent article. Ignore the snide digs at Jews and take in the facts. Among other things, this covers a smear on the Chilean Embassy which Gable masterminded.

Destabilising the "decent people", by Duncan Campbell, Bruce Page and Nick Anning, published in the New Statesman, February 15, 1980, pages 234-6.

The first exposé of Gable's spreading of disinformation, probably at the behest of M.I.5.

SEARCHLIGHT MAN JAILED FOR ARSON, by Our Sussex Correspondent, published in Focal Point, May 30, 1981.

A comprehensive though not entirely accurate article published in David Irving's thankfully long defunct magazine, reports on the April 13, 1981 trial of Searchlight "researcher" Manny Carpel for burning down a printing press. This was widely reported at the time, including by Searchlight. Also covers Gable's antics in 1963 and his exposure as a Secret State "asset".

Pages: 1-3, main article.

Sniper shines the searchlight on Gerry Gable and illuminates some disturbing facts..., published in the Sniper column in the magazine Anarchy, 2nd series, Summer 1983, pages 23-5. (Based on photocopy).

An anarchist view of Gerry Gable.

Lies, damn lies...and Panorama, by Robin Oakley, published in the Daily Mail, March 16, 1984, pages 22-3.

A timely exposé of a Gable "exposé". The smear programme Maggie's Militant Tendency which was broadcast on January 30, 1984 is exposed as a tissue of lies, half-truths and innuendo. This article itemises the distortions one by one.

Now, the truth about the spy who never was, by Barrie Penrose, and Mazher Mahmood, published in the Sunday Times, April 27, 1986, page 3.

Reports on a Channel 4 20/20 Vision programme in which civil servant Brian Gentleman - a twenty-seven year old junior DTI clerk, was fitted up for selling information to an alleged Czech spy. Gable is described as an assistant producer of the programme. Brian Gentleman was a none too bright civil servant living in a hostel, probably lonely, also a bit of a dreamer. He was smeared on the strength of drinking with a middle aged Czech diplomat. Gentleman frequented public houses used by homosexuals though there is no suggestion that he was queer. The other major player was a convicted fraudster named Derek Donaldson who is alleged to have brought this story to Gable's attention.

A TEACHERS' GUIDE TO THE SEARCHLIGHT ORGANISATION

Police question TV men over Czech spy claims, by Barrie Penrose and Mazher Mahmood, published in the Sunday Times, May 25, 1986, page 5.

The gullible Brian Gentleman said he was misled by Gable. Him and twenty million others. Gable and co said to have been interviewed at great length at New Scotland Yard. Gable had pretended to be filming itinerant workers; he is said to have told the Sunday Times to fuck off.

SPY TRIAL BY TELEVISION, by Duncan Campbell, Patrick Forbes and Jolyon Jenkins, published in the New Statesman, July 25, 1986, pages 10-11.

Notes From the Underground: British Fascism 1974-92 - Part 1 1974-83, by Larry O'Hara, published in Lobster, issue 23, June 1992, pages 15-20.

Public Reply by CAFE to slanders by Gerry Gable (editor/boss of Searchlight) and the leaders of Red Action, published in Nazis Out!, Nov/Dec 1992, issue 7, pages 4-5.

Published by the Campaign Against Fascism In Europe. Gable's equally undemocratic rivals slag him off. A good article.

AT WAR WITH THE TRUTH: THE TRUE STORY OF SEARCHLIGHT AGENT TIM HEPPLER, by Larry O'Hara, Produced by Mina Enterprises, Camberley, Surrey, (1993).

30 page A4 pamphlet exposing Searchlight agent provocateur Tim Hepple's lurid goings-on. Reproduces a number of documents including one called Einherjar, a fake Nazi fanzine replete with anti-Semitic references which O'Hara believes Gable produced. This is the second of O'Hara's exposés of Searchlight; his first, A Lie Too Far..., has its points but is very garbled; this one though is extremely lucid.

Christie: "Can you give me one scientific report that shows the existence of gas chambers anywhere in Nazi-occupied territory?"

Hilberg: "I'm at a loss."

Christie: "You are (at a loss) because you can't. I want one report, before, during or after the war that shows that someone was killed by the use of those gases," Christie challenged.

Hilberg: "You want an autopsy (report) and I know of no autopsy."

(20) One such survivor and leading "anti-fascist" campaigner is Kitty Hart, who has published two autobiographies based on her experiences as a teenager at Auschwitz. In her 1961 book I am alive, she claims to have met the infamous Dr Mengele and to have been forced to parade before him naked. On page 105, she reports that "The Sonderkommando, with whom there was secret contact, told of the inside of the crematoria. The 'hairdressers' shaved the bodies of all hair, for it was required for the manufacture of rope...From the bodies soap was being made..."

In her second autobiography Return to Auschwitz, published 20 years later, (written in collaboration with a ghost writer), she reports (page 112) that "Smoke was beginning to billow out of the tall chimneys. Soon a spurt of flame shot up into the sky. The black smoke became thicker and darker and choking, bringing with it the smell of burning fat and bone and hair."

Need we point out that the gas chamber victims had already been shaved, so she did not smell burning hair, any more than she saw flames and black smoke? Contact your local crematorium and they will tell you that crematoria do not give off smoke, flames or the smell of burning corpses.

(21) In public, historians and other academics pay lip service to the veracity of survivors, but in private, and in academic publications, they concede that there are "problems" with survivor testimony. For some candid admissions about the lies of many former concentration camp inmates and the general unreliability of their testimony, the reader is referred to The men who whitewash Hitler, already cited and to The Holocaust Denial: a Study in Propaganda Technique, by Roger Eatwell, published in the 1991 book Neo-Fascism In Europe.

(22) In the June 1993 issue of Searchlight, a two page article Coventry civil servant harbours nazi terrorists gave the home address of Aryan Resistance member Kathy Murphy and commented that "Her fellow employees appear unconcerned about her activities." Adding, "Perhaps when Murphy's colleagues at work read this article, they and their union representatives will change their minds about having this heap of garbage under the same roof. The ball is now firmly in their court and the time for waffle is over." Murphy was a Social Security clerical worker with ten years' service.

The June 1987 issue hounded Mercedes Benz worker Steve Brady. As we shall see shortly, Searchlight editor Gable has a very personal reason for his hatred of Mr Brady.

(23) In 1614, Heronym Zahorowski, "resentful and vengeful", published The Secret Instructions Of The Jesuits. Better known by its Latin name (Monita secreta) it swiftly became "[a] kind of archetype for anti-Jesuit literature, [and] has given direction to much that subsequent centuries, wittingly and unwittingly, have had to say about the Society." (28) Searchlight editorial, December 1986. Arch-liar Gable went on to threaten to sue for libel anyone who repeated such "mischievous allegations" as had appeared in the Daily Telegraph, October 23 and News of the World, October 26. Something he would have been ill-advised to do, because no one is entitled to defend a reputation he has no right to possess.

(29) There is a copy of this in the Wiener Library.

(30) This claim also appears on the inside of the front cover where it is augmented by the boast that Searchlight has also given evidence to the Home Affairs Committee into racial harassment and racial attacks.

(32) A WELL-OILED NAZI MACHINE: An Analysis of the Growth of the Extreme Right in Britain, published by A.F. & R. Publications, Birmingham, (1974). A.F. & R. Publications was then the name of Searchlight's publishing house.

(33) It is conveniently forgotten nowadays by the likes of the Searchlight team that the founder of the National Front, A.K. Chesterton, although a former Fascist, fought in both world wars, and co-authored a book on anti-Semitism with the Orthodox Jewish writer Joseph Leftwich. And that, in its early stages at least, the National Front contained many ex-servicemen, some with distinguished war records.

(34) It is this more than anything else which exposes for all to see - all who are not wilfully blind - the unconditional racial hatred of a certain kind of Jew - Maurice Ludmer and Gerry Gable - for Western society. In this context it should also be noted that, contrary to anti-Semitic propaganda, the vast majority of Jews - devout Jews in particular - are every bit as opposed to miscegenation as their Gentile neighbours. The intense racism of Asians, particularly the older generation, needs no documentation, while among blacks in recent years there has been a backlash against particularly so-called "celebrity miscegenation". Blacks who marry out are treated with the same ostracism as whites, often more so.

(35) The Guardian, February 25, 1980, page 8. These are actually the words of interviewer Polly Toynbee, but they are Ludmer's sentiments to a tee. In the same interview he reasserted his belief that racists should not have the right of free speech. Of course, Ludmer's definition of a racist was far broader than yours or mine.

(37) The last time Roberts was mentioned in the magazine was the August 1981 issue. The following disclaimer appeared on the back page of the magazine: "We wish to make it clear that Dave Roberts is not and never has been a member of Searchlight's editorial group and is in no way associated with the work of the magazine. Some years ago he came to us with his story, which we ran; in return for expenses he offered to compile an index for us as he was unemployed and waiting to go to college. In the last few weeks it has come to our notice that Roberts has been taking advantage of Maurice Ludmer's death and has been contacting journalists and anti-fascist activists using Searchlight's name. He is not connected in any way with the magazine, nor would we wish him to be."

Veronica Ware - Editor

Gerry Gable - Former Editor.

This is a blatant and provable lie; the current writer has it on good information that Roberts actually edited Searchlight at one point, probably while he was carrying on a liaison with one of Maurice Ludmer's daughters.

(38) Billig is a graduate of and former Research Fellow with Bristol University. He spent eleven years in the Department of Psychology, University of Birmingham. He is also the author of a book on the National Front called Fascists: A Social Psychological View of the National Front, published by Academic Press in 1978. The title reflects the total worthlessness of this study; the National Front was never a fascist party, racist yes - whatever is meant by that word - but never fascist.

(40) For a critique of this the reader is referred to EYSENCK AND THE NAZIS: Another "Searchlight" Smear Exposed And Refuted, by Alexander Baron, published by Anglo-Hebrew Publishing, London, (1994).

This pamphlet was actually researched by Patrick Harrington and written by Nick Griffin. It contains a number of errors, but is quite an eye opener. According to Griffin, * after its publication the National Front received a letter from Searchlight's solicitors threatening legal action if they did not immediately withdraw the pamphlet. The Front ignored the letter. No legal action ensued.

* Undated telephone conversation with the current writer.

(49) In 1993 a curious - and obviously bogus - Nazi "fanzine" called Einherjar was distributed anonymously to selected rightists. Independent researcher Larry O'Hara claimed in his exposé of Searchlight (At War With The Truth...) that this fanzine was in fact published by Gable/Atkinson and company, an allegation which up until this moment has not been publicly denied. It is difficult to believe that it emanated from any other source because it amounts to a virtual advertisement for a Searchlight publication; it also contains the same disinformation about "Nazi terrorists" which Searchlight has been plugging meticulously for years.

- (80) The full, documented story, based largely on reports from the contemporary Jewish Chronicle, is told by the current writer in A REVISIONIST HISTORY OF THE 1960s SYNAGOGUE ARSONS..., published by Anglo-Hebrew Publishing, London, (March 1994).
- (81) The 62 Group was a gang of Jewish thugs founded in 1962, ostensibly, for the purpose of fighting fascism and anti-Semitism. They were not appreciated by the Anglo-Jewish Establishment (whose members prefer to destroy our freedoms by legal means).
- (82) In reality, Jordan's fanatically anti-Jewish wife was the "inspiration" behind this sordid terror campaign. She was later gaoled for 18 months. It was and is accepted that Colin Jordan (an unapologetic, ideological anti-Semite), was both totally ignorant of the identity of the perpetrators of this arson campaign, and strongly disapproved of it.
- (83) Gable has repeated his lies about these fires and his role in solving them in the September 1984 issue of Searchlight (in an unsigned obituary for Harry Bidney, where he credited Bidney with cracking the case); the Jewish Chronicle, October 23, 1987; and the April 1993 and August 1994 issues of Searchlight. Doubtless he has also related them to many gullible young "anti-fascists" and Jews on numerous other occasions.
- (84) Jewish Chronicle, October 23, 1987, page 10. This is well known; in 1964, Gable was convicted of what would now be called burglary artifice, at the London flat of the historian David Irving. In 1992, Gable had a much closer call when, he stood in the dock with Red Action and Provisional IRA supporter Gary O'Shea, accused of masterminding an act of serious public disorder. Much to the disgust of the police, the trial collapsed, but it was never explained where the people Gable was with obtained the forged tickets they used to enter this private meeting.
- (85) Once a "Nazi" always a Nazi; once a communist always a communist.
- (86) Hackney Gazette AND NORTH LONDON ADVERTISER, May 15, 1962. The turnout was 17.8%. Northfield ward results were reported on page 4 as follows: Labour 1,108, 1,043, 1,009; Conservative 114, 129, 117; Liberal 562, 564, 580; Communist (G.C. Gable) 178.
- (87) The Morning Star started life as the Daily Worker; it changed its name in 1966.
- (88) I Believed, by Douglas Hyde, published by William Heinemann, London, (1950), page 190.
- (89) The Ultra-Orthodox, the men in the black hats and caftans, are well aware of this, and are quite candid about it. Contrary to anti-Semitic propoganda, real Jews have no time at all for communism, and despise Jewish communists for bringing the hatred of the goyim on their religion.
- (90) Both the ideology and the conspiracy theory are demonstrably false, as anyone who studies the history of Marks & Spencer will soon realise.
- (91) FREEDOM UNDER THE LAW, by the Right Honourable Sir Alfred (later Lord) Denning, published by Stevens & Sons, London, (1949), page 7.
