

Emirates on the Up

United Arab Emirates carrier, Emirates, is to increase its Manchester to Dubai service in mid-1992. The company will all be expanding its European operations with additional services from Dubai to Paris, and Rome, and its Far East services, to Taipei and Jakarta.

And, just to make sure that its passengers don't get bored, from April, the airline will also be installing a personal in-flight video entertainment system in first, business and economy class on its wide-body aircraft. First class passengers will get a six inch screen, business and economy travellers will have to settle for four and a half inches. A choice of six main movies will be available on two channels with four others devoted to sport, current affairs children's entertainment and comedy.