

WOMAN OF THE WORLD

Picture: PAUL GROVER.

Woman Business Traveller of the Year is 29 year old Michelle Mould (pictured). Marketing manager Michelle was nominated for the award by husband Paul Wright, who works for the same company as a sales executive. She is said to "look like a lady, act like a man and work like a dog". Last year she spent 100 days jetting around the world, including one 27 day spell without a break. Michelle from Farnham, Surrey, received her award at the Dorchester Hotel on Friday 24th January; it is, appropriately, a seven day holiday for two in San Francisco and Hawaii. The award is sponsored by Business Traveller magazine, United Airlines and Westin Hotels and Resorts.

"There are more women on business flights than there used to be," said Michelle, but, she added, "I still notice when I see another woman on the plane." Although, she quipped later, "...a few more male cabin crew would make a change."
