

The Latest From Burley Games

ENTERTAINMENT FEATURED

By Alexander Baron

Peter Burley is a game developer; he is no stranger to the Mind Sports Olympiad which has featured some of his creations. His latest baby is Zambezi, which was trademarked earlier this month and was also exhibited at the Nuremberg International Toy Fair – which also caters for games. Zambezi, which was developed with his son, is played with 2 to 8 players. It looks a bit complicated, but in this Vimeo video he explains it in some depth. As might be suspected it is a game about exploration.

Zambezi board game

Burley's major hits are Kamisado and Take It Easy, but he has others in development, in particular Alchemist and Space Hockey. According to the official Burley Games website, he has recently been touring universities with his creations. Perhaps at some point he will visit Goldsmiths where he can show Bahar Mustafa how those old white guys do it. That is if she hasn't lost her job by the time he gets there!