

What Will Happen In 2016?

By Alexander Baron - Jan 1, 2016

We could ask Sally Morgan or some other “psychic” imbecile, or we could use the knowledge we have to make intelligent predictions. With that in mind, and in no particular order, here are one man’s thoughts:

Later this month, Daniel Holtzclaw will appear in court again. Having been sentenced to 263 years by the jury, this serial rapist will see the State asking that his sentences be ordered to run consecutively. The judge may or may not agree to that, but if Holtzclaw is ever released it will not be until after the next appearance of Halley’s comet. During and/or after the judge passes formal sentence, Holtzclaw will weep like a baby as he did before.

In South Africa, convicted murderer Oscar Pistorius will be resentenced to a minimum of 15 years, not a day less than he deserves.

In the UK, Ched Evans will have his rape conviction overturned by the Court of Appeal. There will be the usual outcry from “wimmin’s” groups, but with newfound humility, Evans will attempt to rebuild his soccer career.

Detectives from a certain police force will be left with egg on their faces when they arrest someone they have harassed intermittently and for no valid reason for over two decades, when he is apparently caught breaking the law with impunity, only to find they have been had. This arrest will however open a veritable Pandora’s box that will lead to the disgrace if not the sacking and prosecution of several corrupt officers.

The Grim Sleeper trial will finally get underway, and the accused will be convicted on most if not all counts.

Gloria Allred will finally overstep the mark, if she hasn’t already, when at least one of the Cosby accusers will be comprehensively debunked by the mainstream media.

There will be another major terrorist outrage in Europe, probably a capital, possibly London. It remains to be seen if this will involve firearms, but it is best not to speculate so as not to put ideas in tiny minds.

Ding Junhui will become the first Chinese and indeed the first non-white player to win the World Professional Snooker Championship, which may well lead to a golden age of snooker in China and a new dominant force in the game.

Andy Murray will make the Wimbledon men’s singles final, and possibly even win it for the second time.

Whether or not Donald Trump is elected President, there will be major shifts and reforms in America’s immigration policy.
