

Alexander Baron

<http://www.infotextmanuscripts.org>

15 Comments

The Latest News

1 Alexander Baron ▾

♥ Recommend

🔗 Share

Sort by Best ▾

Join the discussion...

Cindy · a year ago

It is a tragic fact that a multitude of false accusers are being catered to while the accused, their families, friends, careers, society all suffer, even causing death by suicide or murder and there is seldom a penalty more than a slap on the wrist to these dangerous liars

5 ^ | ▾ · Reply · Share >

TheFinn · a year ago

Please keep in mind that these are just the false accusers who have "been reported".

3 ^ | ▾ · Reply · Share >

band end - TheFinn - a year ago

Do women lie about rape?

Let's see what live video says...

^ | v - Reply - Share >

Daphne Girl - a year ago

False accusations create victims of those falsely accused. Rape claims have always been a favorite of a certain type of vindictive woman. And they are rarely punished properly for the damage they inflict on others. If false accusations were punished with severity, they would go away.

2 ^ | v - Reply - Share >

KaoseThema - a year ago

Good job, Ladies! Good job ruining the lives of innocent men and real victims.

1 ^ | v - Reply - Share >

Owen Thomas - a year ago

Making a false rape accusation is perjury, a felony in my state. I can't recall ever hearing of a single case of one of these insane women being charged with perjury for what they've done. Perjury and prison should be mandatory for proven false accusers!

^ | v - Reply - Share >

Hendrik Vanderstijn · a year ago

>perhaps as many as half of all reports are false

Citation needed. False accusations are a problem, but of all the data I've seen on the subject, I've never seen any that would support a high percentage as 50%

What are you basing that claim on?

^ | v · Reply · Share >

Frontierguy03 → Hendrik Vanderstijn · a year ago

According to Statistics Canada, 43% of reported sexual assaults result in charges, and 56% of charges result in convictions. If you do the math, after investigation by law enforcement and adjudication by the courts, only 24% of reported sexual assaults are found to be true. Source: N.B. Status of Women Report 2010, pg 87.

1 ^ | v · Reply · Share >

Tuuc → Frontierguy03 · a year ago

Non-true and false accusations are two very different things. A false accusation is one that is intentionally and knowingly false, whereas non-true accusations include cases where the accuser was honestly mistaken (for example misremembered details leading to the arrest of the wrong person) or where the proof is simply insufficient to prove either the truthfulness or the falseness of the accusation.

^ | v · Reply · Share >

Frontierguy03 → Tuuc · a year ago

I agree, but feminists will use the "only" 2-8% false accusation statistic to insinuate the remainder of the accusations are true. If one is to only consider reported accusations as true or false, then there are many more false accusations than true accusations.

1 ^ | v · Reply · Share >

Hendrik Vanderstijn → Frontierguy03 · a year ago

Then confront those feminists when they make the mistake. Two wrongs don't make a right.

^ | v · Reply · Share >

Dustin MacDonald → Hendrik Vanderstijn · a year ago

That's been my experience as well. The methodologically rigorous research that exists shows the rate to be between 2-8% (which is always accompanied by a notation that this is in line with other violent crimes - though I haven't seen any data on that to back up.)

I actually wrote a blog article on this exact topic, with bibliography and in-line citations: <http://dustinkmacdonald.com...>

^ | v · Reply · Share >

Hendrik Vanderstijn → Dustin MacDonald · a year ago

2-8% are rather on the low side, if you were to claim that includes all false rape accusations out of the 100% rape accusations made.

2-8%, those are the proven false cases where a court case has started. What about accusations that don't start a court case? What about accusations that are false but not proven false?

(it's always hard to find evidence to prove a negative)

^ | v · Reply · Share >

Funcuz Chris → Dustin MacDonald · a year ago

Please, don't call it "methodologically rigorous research". It is a perfect example of the 'woozle effect'.

I don't know the true number or percentage of false accusations but nobody really does either. One thing I do know is that that 'research' you think you're citing is as scientifically sound as any poll from Fox News regarding gun control. Take a closer look at who conducted it, how it was worded, what the controls were, and so on. What you'll find is that it's far, FAR from scientific and should never be used to act as any sort of citation.

^ | v · Reply · Share ›

Dustin MacDonald → Funcuz Chris · a year ago

Since you're so sure of yourself, I'm sure you have better research showing the rate to be substantially higher. Right? Right?

^ | v · Reply · Share ›

ALSO ON THE LATEST NEWS

Sex Scandals And Shysters In The News

1 comment · a year ago

JayRaskin — Good information, well presented, as usual, Alexander. The False Rape Accusation Industry would ...

Oldest Ever Tailored Egyptian Dress Found

1 comment · a year ago

Alexander Baron — Dress like an Egyptian!

Scientists Invent Acoustic Tweezers To Move Cells

1 comment · a year ago

Victor Grayson — Great science!

Success In Using Fat Cells To Mend Bone

1 comment · a year ago

Paul Wallis — Can't help wondering - Fat is stored as a reserve, so maybe it's the default instant-access medical cabinet ...