If you lived in Japan you would probably not ask that question. Although he is only 15 years old he received an entry in The Guinness Book Of Records as the world's youngest professional guitarist way back in August 2008! Many Western rock bands have long been big in Japan, including UFO who scored there back in the early 1970s. Now the Japanese are returning the favour.

Miyazawa is no stranger to either American audiences or America itself, having appeared on The Ellen Degeneres Show, played with Ozzy Osbourne, and performed The Star Spangled Banner at a baseball game in Los Angeles.

Curiously his website has not been updated since December 2012, perhaps a little thing called school might be to blame, but he can be found on both Facebook and Twitter. He is currently in Hong Kong where is performing in clubs.

He does not appear to have begun composing yet, and it will be interesting to see how he develops when he does, and puts a regular band together.
