

SHAKESPEARE 400

By me
William Shakespeare
A life in writing

An exhibition telling the story of Shakespeare's life in London through the paper trail left behind

Discover the stories behind key moments in Shakespeare's life, from the birth of the Globe theatre in London to his last days in Stratford-upon-Avon 400 years ago.

By me William Shakespeare offers a once-in-a-generation opportunity to explore Shakespeare's will, alongside other unique documents that witness his life. Through original research, scientific analysis and a new digital installation, the exhibition looks at why these documents were created and what they tell us about the world's most famous playwright.

Learn about Shakespeare's life in London and the man behind the writing: royal servant, author, friend and father.

3 Feb–29 May 2016

Tue–Sun 10.00–18.00 (until 20.00 Thurs)

Inigo Rooms, King's College London

Somerset House East Wing

Strand, WC2R 2LS

Tickets £10 / £8 concessions free for under 18s

Book now: bymewilliamshakespeare.org

#BymeShakespeare

This exhibition is presented by The National Archives and King's College London as part of Shakespeare400. Digital installation by 59 productions

 The National Archives

 KING'S College
LONDON